Tuesday 14 September, Newbury Racecourse, RG14 7NZ

Morning session: 9.30 arrival for 10am start, finish 1pm

Afternoon session: 1.30pm arrival for 2pm start, finish 5pm

Both courses will be hosted by broadcaster Ed Chamberlin and commentator Richard Hoiles

Course: Media and Communications Training

Improve your skills in front of the camera and in front of your peers with specialised coaching from two of the best in the business. This training will be relevant to anyone who wants to communicate better, whether aiming for a career as a TV presenter or wanting to be more effective in your existing job.

Learn:

- Importance of effective communication
- How to excel at interviews
- Planning and preparation
- Decision making under pressure
- Projection and vocabulary, body language and voice control
- How to overcome your fears to build confidence
- How to present like a professional

The training will be wholly interactive in a small group with each participant getting one-to-one interview time.

In advance of the training, each participant will be asked to prepare a short interview piece – either as the interviewer or interviewee depending on their own individual aspirations. It will be a fun exercise so there is no need to worry about it!

Feedback and recommendations will be provided to each participant.

Price: £500

Student price on application.

Discounts for those who have already had CS online training during lockdown.

Discounts for those who 'refer a friend' and for groups.

Both courses will include a tour of Newbury racecourse
